

Arjen vd Schaaf

Arjen van der Schaaf is a medical physics expert in radiotherapy with a background in applied physics, biophysics, imaging, signal processing, and statistical modeling. His research interests include modeling of treatment side effects, and he was involved in the introduction of model-based selection for proton therapy in the Netherlands.