

To ensure a successful hybrid conference the conference scientific committee have prepared some rules to be met for both the organization and for the realization of the session:

- The sessions can be organized by one or more people.
- At least one person must act as the main host.
- All hosts and co-hosts must be registered at the conference within the given deadlines.
- People indicated as hosts and/or co-hosts who have not registered at the conference within the established deadlines, will not be included in the final session's description.
- At least one of the hosts must be physically present in the respective room throughout the session to act as a moderator. This information should be included in the session proposal.
- Sessions cannot be moderated virtually.
- Sessions facing last-minute difficulties meeting the requirement of a face-to-face moderator must inform this situation to the conference organizers in due time to be assigned a face-to-face moderator.
